

Dayton, Ohio

As I said before, I'm from Dayton, the sixth largest city in Ohio. Dayton experiences all types of weather. At home, I face hot summers with an average temperature of about 28 degrees, but I also see cold, dry winters when temperatures drop to about -5 degrees. In the spring, even tornadoes can occur. I've survived some pretty rough storms while living in Dayton! Dayton is also the home of some noteworthy people. For example, Orville and Wilbur Wright, better known as the Wright Brothers, came from Dayton, Ohio. They invented the first successful airplane, giving Ohio its nickname: "The Birthplace of Aviation." Nancy Cartwright, the voice of Bart Simpson on the animated TV series The Simpsons, was also born and raised in Dayton. Aside from these great people, Dayton is most well-known for its engineering research and development facilities. It is even home to the United States National Air Force Museum. Dayton, Ohio is a pretty cool place!
